DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1,9 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Takigawa et al. (U.S. Patent Number 5,619,859).

Takigawa et al. disclose an absorption refrigeration unit improving the response by adequate heating at the time of start-up operation. Referring to Fig.1, the unit comprises a generator 3, a burner 31a, heating control means 32 and fuel control valve 32a. The first temperature detecting means 7 for detecting an inlet temperature  $T_i$  of the cooling water flowing through the cooling water-piping 23 arranged in the absorber 2 and second temperature detecting means 8 for detecting a temperature  $T_{gh}$  in the high temperature generator 3. The temperature detecting means 7,8 are connected with a controller 100 provided with the opening-degree adjusting means 32b. Opening of the fuel control valve 32a is adjusted by opening-degree adjusting means 32b on the basis of a value detected by cooling load detecting means 32b comprising cooled water outlet temperature detecting means 14 provided at an outlet of the water cooling pipe 11.

3. Claims 1,2,3,6,9,10,13,14,15 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Isumi et al. (JP 05248726).

Izumi et al. disclose an absorption refrigeration machine improving the starting performance. The machine comprises a generator 1, an evaporator 4, an absorber 5, controller 8, pipes, refrigerant circuit, heating control valve V2 and temperature sensors T1,T2,T3. The temperature sensor T2 measures the absorption temperature leaving the generator. The system uses a steam or warm water for the heat source of the regenerator. The available heat to the absorption system is inherent in the system since the valve opening has to be based on the available heat.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 6 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takigawa et al. (U.S. Patent Number 5,619,859) in view of Perry (U.S. Patent Number 4,665,709).

Takigawa et al. disclose the invention substantially as claimed. However, Takigawa et al. disclose burner as direct heat source. Perry discloses boiler with control 26 in the same field of endeavor for the purpose of providing heat for generator. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the apparatus of Takigawa et al. with a controlled heat source in view of Perry so as to save energy.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 4,5,7,8,11,12,16,17,19 and 20 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

7. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Chen-Wen Jiang whose telephone number is (571) 272-4809. The examiner can normally be reached on Tuesday-Friday from 8:00 to 6:30.
